

4.9 Ethical Considerations: Public Resources and Personal Responsibility

After looking at the statistics from the Ministry of Health about the costs related to organ transplantation please comment on the following: You can answer right on this page

1. Do you feel there should be any limits on how much money is spent on organ transplantation?
2. There is no net gain in trying to convince people to watch less TV or cut back on video games. They won't do it, or if they do, it would only last a week or two. Over time, the remote control would find its way back into the family room or living room. Fear campaigns, long used to cut down or eliminate drinking or drug use, have rarely worked. People do not respond to fear tactics.

If you are not going to scare someone into a balanced lifestyle, hat strategies can you create to encourage people to eat healthier foods and get outside to bike, walk, play street hockey or rustle up some friends for a basketball game?
